The 50 Most Exciting Artists in Europe Today: Part One

Amah-Rose Abrams, Tuesday, November 24, 2015

It has been an exciting year for contemporary art, with a young generation of artists pushing the boundaries both in terms of materials and subject matters. But with so much going on it's easy to miss out.

In an effort to capture the moment, we at artnet News have put together a directory of the most exciting artists showing, living, and working in Europe at the moment.

13. Constant Dullaart

Dullaart is a Dutch artist living and working in Berlin. His work is concerned with "visualizing internet vernaculars and software dialects."

He's currently causing a stir with his latest web-based project, in which Dullaart and two assistants are creating thousands of fake Facebook profiles (using the names of Hessian soldiers-for-hire who fought in the U.S. civil war) flouting Facebook's policy on "fake" profiles.

The intention is to stage mass "likes" of certain posts in protest against what Dullaart calls the "quantification of social capital."
